STATEMENT

Women are probably the most astounding creatures that have ever been put on this planet. We are able to conduct ourselves in a way that makes others wish they could be so lucky. As a queen, you are considered to be a leader. Your leadership goes further than just what you can do in your professional life. You are also a leader in your household, in your church, and even in your community. In each of these situations, you must never forget the importance of keeping your crown on your head.

Q - QUINTESSENTIAL

Quintessential means representing the most perfect example of a certain quality or class. As a queen, you are the quintessential woman. You are the perfect embodiment of what it means to be classy, poised, and dignified. You, queen, are the cream of the crop. Therefore, your actions and lifestyle should always exemplify that greatness that you already have inside of you.

U - UNBREAKABLE

Society has made a terrible mistake by labeling the woman as being inferior to that of man. They have said that we are weak, delicate, and fragile beings who tend to wear their emotions on their shoulders. How foolish they were to believe such a thing! The queen is unbreakable in that she can withstand anything that comes her way. She will most definitely be tested and tried through countless times in her life. In fact, there may come a time when she may want to give up. However, she never gives in. She cannot be broken and will continue to strive for greatness no matter what curve balls are thrown her way.

E - EDUCATED

How a woman spends her time says a lot about the type of person that she is, along with what she values. The queen is educated in that she always tries to enrich her mind so that she can ultimately not only help herself, but help make the world a better place as well. She may not necessarily go into one of the STEM professions which are customary of intellectuals; however, she does make it her business to be fully immersed in her field. She embraces new learning opportunities because she understands the value of being educated in a world where what you know is equally as important as who you know.

E - EMPATHETIC

A queen is so much more than what she displays on the outside. Her ability to relate to others is what makes her so beautiful. Being empathetic is a trait that many people want, but so few actually possess. Being able to relate to people on much more than a sympathetic level makes your relationships stronger and more meaningful.

N - NURTURING

Perhaps one of the most notable traits that a queen has is her ability to nurture those around them that they care about. Whether as a result of specific evolution which requires a woman to have motherly instincts regardless of if they have children or because she is aware of the fact that everyone needs love at times, the queen has a nurturing spirit. She will go out of her way to make sure that her friends and family are taken care of and that they feel welcome.

I - INSPIRATIONAL

The queen knows that she has been given a gift. A gift to touch the lives of others with whatever label she chooses to embrace. Therefore, she is considered to be an inspiration to those that are around her. She is not afraid to stand up for what she believes in and speaks for those who may not have the opportunity or possibly even the guts to speak for themselves. She is a woman who values equality and seeks to lift others up on her quest to achieving that goal. Although things may get difficult, she does not stop. Others look up to her for guidance and her motivational demeanor.

S - SELFLESS

Of course, the queen is always selfless. Every characteristic that we have named about the queen so far has centered around this ideal. Her duty is to be a beacon of light in the community. She seeks to show others that it is okay to put others before oneself because she understands the big picture. She spends her days trying to better herself because she knows that the things that she learns will ultimately allow her to make a positive influence in the world.

H - HUMBLE

Lastly, the queen realizes that she is a gem. She knows that she is valuable and that she is a force to be reckoned with regardless of her environment. However, she also knows where her strength comes from. She never forgets her faith and gives credit to where it is due. Being humble is the last important trait that a queen must have because it proves that although she can often be seen as Wonder Woman, she is by no means invincible. She must always keep her faith in the forefront of every decision she makes and be thankful that her Savior has allowed her to reach the point that she is currently at.

Each of these traits makes up the concept of QUEENISH. Traits are exemplified in the lives of several women and also how keeping these traits in mind will help you to battle different obstacles that may occur in your life.
